Why Wiki

We decided to set up a wiki to systematize all the increasing information and documentation of our project and help beginners to understand what they are supposed to do. We've solved a lot of issues at our github and Discord server, and now we are ready to provide our troubleshooting support. Also this wiki contains all information about our project for those who are interested, such as Successful Builds, Committee and so on. Welcome to the Fellowship!

What wiki.relativty.net is wiki.relativty.net is for the documentation of the Relativty VR headset, and software that integrates into it.

wiki.relativty.net has only one topic: the Relativty VR headset and connected software, such as distro's and partners. It includes documentation for some related software that runs externally but connects to and relies on the Relativty VR headset.

This site includes also some information about the Founders and the Relativty committee.

Also keep in mind that English is the main language on this site!

What wiki.relativty.net is not wiki.relativty.net is not a free host or webspace provider

This site is not meant to store private, commercial or any other content that is unrelated to the Relativity VR headset. It is also not meant to be used as a test wiki e.g. to try out formatting or to create valid XHTML contents for foreign projects. You may not host your own website, homepage, blog, or wiki at wiki.relativity.net. If you are interested in using the wiki technology for a collaborative effort on something else, even if it is just a single page, there are many websites that provide wiki hosting, either free or for money. Of course, users can have their own personal pages, but they are used for information relevant to working on wiki.relativity.net. If you are looking to make a personal webpage that is not related to Relativity, please make use of one of the many free homepage providers on the Internet or find a suitable blog. Advertising, especially external links, may be removed from a user's page when there are no relevant contributions related to Relativity.

wiki.relativity.net is not a repository of links, images, or media files

This site is neither a mirror nor a repository of links, images, or media files. Please upload only files that are useful for wiki.relativity.net and provide full information on source and a free license. All content added to wiki.relativity.net may have to be edited mercilessly, and can be redistributed at will.

wiki.relativity.net is not a vehicle for advertising

This site is not to be used for commercial promotion, advertising, propaganda or advocacy - other than for Relativity itself and the Relativity projects.

wiki.relativity.net is not a forum or a chatroom

Don't (mis)use this site, especially user pages and talk pages, as a forum, bulletin board or chatroom.
